COMMERCIAL MUSTARD GROWN LOCALLY

This experiment made in 1941 has proven so successful that four neighbors have this year 400 acres in mustard crop.

Mr. Lee Welsheimer who first experimented with the seed and who was under contract to deliver his seed through Mr. Scott in Calgary, now has direct agreements with the Company whose head office is in Rochester, New York.

The seed is small and of a yellow color, but it has no relation to the wild mustard variety, and the straw is equivalent to alfalfa for feed, if harvested early.

The seed is used in the manufacture of prepared mustard and pickles. It is also largely used in hospitals. The volatile oil of mustard is extracted from the seed, which is used for the very finest instruments.

MISS STOCKFORD ADDRESSES W. A.

A special meeting of the W. A. of St. Michael's Church was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. H. Patrick when Miss Stockford of Faust, Alta. was the guest speaker. She spoke highly of the W. A. contributions to the Mission Fields, and of the S. S. work by Van and Postal service.

Miss Stockford showed a number of pictures of the country and institutions therein, which together with her address proved most interesting.

LYALTA

WEDDING— LYLTLE - STEWART

Knox United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding recently when Agnes, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lytle of Ardenode, became the bride of Mr. John Osborne Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Stewart of Lyalta.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a pink Chinese Chiffon gown, and her bridal veil was held in place with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of sweetbrier roses.

Miss Pearl Stewart, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, wearing a yellow Chiffon gown, and her Chapel veil was held in place with a coronet of yellow petals and Lily of the Valley.

Mr. Robert Stewart, brother of the bridegroom was the best man. Mr. Fred Wade and Mr. Billy Seeley were the ushers.

Clifford Higgin, organist of Knox Church played the wedding march and during its signing of the register Mrs. Higgin sang "At the Dawning."

A reception was held in the Club Cafe.

Following a short honeymoon spent in Banff, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart took up residence at Lyalta.

On July 1st Lyalta ball team journeyed to Delacour to take part in their Sports Day, Lyalta winning second money.

A reception was held in the Lyalta hall on June 22nd for Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Stewart (nee Agnes Lytle) where the bride and groom received many lovely gifts. Music was furnished by Joan Wilson, Pearl Stewart and Les McKenzie.

Allen McLaughlin spent the week end at home.

Lyalta Station is going to be succeeded.

THE 'OUT-SIDE'

● Sunstroke victims suffer from dizziness, sometimes nausea, acute headache, and in true sunstroke these symptoms are followed quickly by unconsciousness. The skin is dry and hot, the face red or purple, breathing difficult, fast pulse, and high temperature. A doctor should be called and the patient should be placed on his back in a cool place. As much clothing as possible should be removed. Temperature should be reduced by sponging the body with cold water. Ice in bags or cold cloths, should be applied to the head. Circulation may be induced by rubbing the hands and trunk toward the heart. No stimulants should be given.

● Ottawa—The Canadian Government's decision to start immediate trans-Atlantic air service is a clear indication that Canada is getting in on the ground floor of the international air traffic and will be ready to assert its key position on the postwar air map.

The present trans-Atlantic service will be used for war purposes only—to carry mail and military personnel. It will establish Canada firmly on the trans-Atlantic route as an independent operator.

● Feathers Have Role in War—Ottawa—Military requirements such as sleeping bags, make feathers and down from geese, ducks, chickens and turkeys important. Now no poultry farmer or dealer in feathers who acquires more than 25 pounds of feathers a year may destroy them without permission of A. C. Guthrie, administrator of unpolished metal furniture and bedding.

● Extra Rations for Farm Help—Edmonton—When the farmer's wife must provide for 12 extra meals she is entitled to obtain additional rations through application to the Local Ration Board, states C. G. McKee, regional superintendent of rationing, Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

HAIL STORM DAMAGE

The hail storm which visited this district last Friday about 6 p.m. left a trail of halled out wheat varying from 50 to 75 to 100 per cent.

Among the farmers who suffered through the storm are Otto Wheeler, Wm. Harwood, T. L. Chamberlain, N. Scheer, W. Laycraft, D. Risseau, and others. The storm covered a strip from 2 to 3 miles wide and 20 miles long.

Boys, Girls, Bring Coupons To Camp

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board at the last minute have issued changed orders for camps this season and now require each camper to bring one butter and two meat coupons, by which we shall buy our supplies.

Mr. Hunt asks that all boys wishing to attend Camp Fairweather get in touch with him that he may make plans for sufficient supplies. A good staff of leaders has been provided. The Boys' Camp commences next Monday, July 12th, in the afternoon. Parents make plans for campers to get out and back to camp.

The Girls' Camp date is Aug. 12th to 20th. Please mark the change from the first announced date, made necessary by other plans of the director, Mrs. (Birdie) Craig. Mrs. Craig is planning an interesting program and the campers are keen again. Five girls from Field B. C. have sent in registrations. So put yours in campers.

● THE RETURN HOME

After many false reports of dates of departure for Canada, we were finally given fairly definite word that we would start home on Friday, October 2. We had returned from the West part of England the previous Sunday, and had spent the intervening days in final conferences, last minute visits to famous places in London, and preparations for the journey. These preparations included having our notes officially sealed so that we would have no trouble in taking them through the ports of embarkation and arrival.

On that last Thursday, I paid a final visit to St. Paul's Cathedral and gazed on the expanse of ruins which surrounds this shrine.

In the afternoon, I went to see "The Belle of New York" at the Coliseum Theatre, one of the most beautiful theatres I have ever seen. Walking back to the Strand Palace Hotel, where we stayed the last few days in London, I found the Strand crowded with people, the first time I had seen any streets really crowded in England.

A fruit store near the hotel, I noted, was selling peaches for 8 shillings each, and grapes for 16 shillings a pound.

Friday morning we started on a trip during which we were destined to use many forms of transportation. First an automobile took us to the station.

Then we travelled on a train, the most luxurious one we had seen in England, to a port of embarkation. At the railway station, a bus was waiting for us in which we went to the Airways office.

Here our baggage was weighed, our tickets and passports checked, and a light lunch served, after which we got into a launch which took us out to a British Overseas Airways Flying boat. When we finally took off, this flying boat was carrying sixty-nine passengers, all their baggage, and the crew of eleven.

A few hours later, this huge artificial bird with its heavy load came down at a transfer point, settling so gently that few of us knew just when we touched the water. This place was in Elre and again our passports were checked. We were only there long enough to send off a few postcards. Then once more we got into a launch which took us to a Sikorsky American Export Ace. It took in all the members of the Bomber Press and a few other passengers.

The return journey was considerably slower, but very much more comfortable than the trip over in a bomber. The hostess, Miss Dorothy Buchanan, looking very smart in her attractive uniform, started passing around American cigarettes, (you can smoke cigarettes but not cigars or a pipe in an Ace, but smoking was forbidden in the bomber), chewing gum, and the latest American magazines. Later a hot dinner was served, and soon after the hostess and steward started making up the berths which were very much like those in a Pullman.

Early the next morning the flying boat came down in Canadian waters. There was a strong wind and very rough water so that the launch took off our party with some difficulty.

Before we left the transfer point the previous evening, we watched a Pan-American Clipper take off. We arrived in Canadian waters in time to see the same Clipper come down beside us. For a trip of about two thousand miles over the Atlantic, the two rival planes were only a few minutes apart.

After passing our baggage through the customs, we took taxis to the railway station for the last leg of our journey to our homes. The first thing most of us bought were some oranges, which we had not seen for nearly seven weeks.

In a few hours we had again been transported across the ocean from one continent to another, and what a contrast we found. If Canada was not the Promised Land, it was at least flowing with milk, sugar, butter, eggs, matches, soap, and nearly everything that we had been learning to do without.

And the lights! How strange to see lights at every little hamlet and town the train passed through! Probably the most depressing thing in Britain is the blackout; here were brilliant lights in the train and in all the towns. They made the war seem so very far away, almost as if this country were not in it. And those were not the only things that gave an impression almost of unconcern about the war. The stores were well-stocked and crowded with buyers. Everywhere we missed that feeling of intense determination.

We found that Canadians were greatly interested in everything over there. We all spent a very busy time answering questions, giving talks, writing articles, and generally trying to bring home the picture of things as we found them.

If we have been able to show parents that their sons and daughters overseas are well taken care of, that they are active and enthusiastic; if we have inspired workers to greater efforts; if we have made others anxious to practise self-denial as an aid to victory; if we have helped to reassure Canadians as to the fighting fitness of their forces; if we have created a greater desire to buy more Victory Bonds to provide the needed sinews of war, the work of the Bomber Press will have been well worth while.

Just a few closing words of thanks to all the officers and officials who helped to make our travels so agreeable, and who spared no effort to meet our slightest wish to see any special activity; also to the editors and readers who have written expressing their appreciation of the effort to tell them what is going on in Britain.

And so we leave our Canadians and others in Britain, with a feeling of confidence that when the time comes, they will acquit themselves with glory. As General McNaughton told us at our last conference with him, "They are holding the outposts in the defence of Canada."

In Lincoln Cathedral, there is a chapel dedicated to the heroes of former wars, and under some old battle-scarred flags, held together with netting, I found these words on the wall, "A moth-eaten rag, on a worm-eaten pole, It does not seem likely to stir a man's soul; 'Tis the deeds that were done, 'neath that moth-eaten rag. When the pole was a staff, and the rag was a flag."

Average weight of 11,000 human brains weighed was 1,361 grams for man; 1,290 grams for woman.

SAFER IN DESERT

Major H. C. Stamp went through two years of desert fighting, bombings and flights with paratroops. Always he had with him his kit, through five thousand miles of travelling. Then he took it to London. Five minutes after it was stolen.

During 1942, Ceylon's village schools were responsible for the cultivation of 30,000 acres of crops.

Preparations for the landing of troops in North Africa involved alteration to over 300 ordinary merchant ships for use as troop carriers, floating work-shops, etc., all of which was completed in a short time and in the utmost secrecy.

By the middle of November 1942, Britain had sent to Russia equipment for 20 armoured divisions on the German scale.

Canadian Pacific Officials Honored

OUTSTANDING contributions to the war effort of the United Nations by Canadian Pacific officials both in Government and in company service are given deserved recognition in the civilian division of the recent honors list when four were made officers of the Order of the British Empire, and one a member of the Order. Those receiving the O.B.E. were: George Hodge, manager, Department of Personnel, and at Ottawa serving as a member of the National Labor Board Committee, representing employers; John Eaton, assistant general purchasing agent and on leave of absence, serving at Ottawa as Director

General, General Purchasing Branch, Department of Munitions and Supply; A. Hector Cadieux, Montreal, acting chief, Department of Investigation and C.R. (Patrol) Troop, Montreal, general supervisor, Canadian Pacific Air Lines, air observer schools operated in conjunction with the Air Training Plan. The M.B.E. was awarded W. A. Newman, Montreal, chief mechanical engineer and serving the Allied cause as President of Federal Aircraft Limited. Pictured left to right, top row, W. A. RICHARD MORENUS

Well known to American air audiences as dramatic script writer, actor, producer and director, and now a familiar radio personality to CBC listeners since taking up residence in Canada. During the past year many of Mr. Morenus' radio plays have been produced from the Winnipeg studios, and with each presentation his admirers in the air audience have increased. His most recently produced drama was "Rolling Redhots" heard in the current Summer Theatre series on Tuesdays, 7:30 p.m. CDT (6:30 p.m. MDT), a series designed to present Western Canadian players in Canadian plays. Other dramatic scripts by Mr. Morenus are scheduled for broadcast in the near future. He is the husband of Nan Dorland, radio star of many American programmes.

SOFT SPOTS IN THE LUFTWAFFE

With the air war once more uppermost in the public thought, Hauptmann Hermann's "The Luftwaffe. Its Rise and Fall" (New York, Putnam, $3.00) is sure to attract wide attention. It is, indeed, a welcome and necessary compliment to the books that have dealt with the chances for victory through air power, as seen from the Allied side.

The author was a pilot in Germany's air fleet of the last war. After his demobilization he studied engineering and became a close collaborator of Prof. Hugo Junkers, the inventor and plane constructor. He also was among the earliest members of the glider school in the Rhoe. He left Germany shortly before the outbreak of the present war.

His almost twenty-five year contact with the German airplane industry, the Luft Hansa, and the Luftwaffe Department of the army has enabled Hermann to get and give an all round picture of his subject. His conclusions are as startling as they sound convincing. They can be summed up in the sentence that the Luftwaffe, pride of Adolf Hitler, main weapon of the German blitzkrieg and terror of Europe, is doomed.

He supports this dictum by a brilliant analysis of the men who command the German air fleet, the role which it was intended to play, and its achievements in the first four years of the war. What proved fatal for the Luftwaffe was, according to the author, that it was removed from army control and became a playground for Nazi amateurs. It became the instrument on which the dream-strategist Hitler based his plans for world conquest. He promised short campaigns, the tackling of only one enemy at a time, and ample breathing spells between campaigns. —Christian Science Monitor.

OTHER DUNKIRKS

HOW much can the warrior of today learn from a study of that greatest of all books, which has lived through the ages—the Bible! In it are stirring accounts of battles fought and won by those who relied absolutely on God when all about them pointed to defeat.

Moses and his people, pursued by the Egyptians were faced with the Red Sea, and yet, obedient to God's command, they went forward, not knowing how they would be delivered, yet they proceeded on dry land and thus escape their pursuers. Joshua persistently marched his men around the city of Jericho, knowing that eventually its walls would fall. He had learned to trust in God; for had not God divided the waters of Jordan for him even as He had parted the Red Sea for Moses? Moses and Joshua were leaders of the children of Israel. Both men recognized the advice of Truth when it came to them, saying "The Lord shall fight for you." (Exodus 14:14) Christian Science Monitor.

"I LOVE A PARADE"

SUCH WAS the implication of the action of the thousands of men, women and children who waited and watched patiently Monday morning as the varied panorama was unveiled.

Fifty thousand people passed through the Turnstiles at Exhibition Park in Calgary Monday. It would seem a safe guess that this number was increased by 10000 to 15000 who stood or sat while the two hour parade held the throng agape with the varied features of reminiscences of the past from Charlie Jackson's Red River Cart, that creaks from sheer old age, and about the only vehicle of its kind left in this part of the country, to the modern airplane that soared overhead. Let your imagination traverse the history making events between the day of the construction of this cart to the modern helicopter that will form the means of transportation in the near future.

It is estimated, 6,500 members of the Army, Air Force, Navy, R.C.A.F. (W.D.), the W.A.A.F. and Cadets took part.

They were a well set up forward looking group of men and women, who marched proudly with china up, and a determination to see things through to a successful end. There was the industrial side which tied in to complete the picture of the various forms of food and equipment.

The necessary Pioneers who played such a gallant part in reclaiming this last Great West for the rich future that awaits it.

The Red Coated Mounties who established law and order.

And the Indian Chiefs, Braves, and Squaws with papooses, some riding on the travois, for whom the Stampede Parade is a red letter day for participants and spectators alike.

It was an excellent parade, the weather was perfect and the Calgary Stampede Parade has once again established the fact that Calgary officials know how to put it over.

An article on a parade may not be the proper place for moralizing, but we cannot refrain from remarking that we earnestly hope that in the near future these uniformed young men and women who added so large a part will be returned to their civilian avocation and the world settled to the work of reconstruction, rather than destruction, and the arts of peace form the basis on which we build a great Canada.

ROCKYFORD

— By K. M. G. —

A very interesting field day was held here on July 1st. at the District Experimental Sub-Station on the farm of Mrs. George Kennedy. The talks in the tent on Weed and Insect elimination and on the conservation of moisture were very instructive. While the men folk watched the field demonstration, Miss Jean Staples, of the Provincial Extension Service, gave a splendid talk on Food, our Weapon of War. Many wonderful hints and pamphlets were given out to help the women store and can the fruit and vegetables of the season.

Okanagan Cherry WeekJULY 12 to 17*●FLASH— B. C. Cherries Now Rolling in Volume

In our last bulletin we told you that while generally speaking crop prospects were not good, that given good weather we would have a normal supply of cherries, well since that time Old Man Weather has been very kind indeed, in fact he has been just perfect. Starting with cool growing weather it has gradually warmed up until now eighteen hours a day of sunshine are hastening a high quality crop of cherries to maturity.

All of which is, of course, contingent upon the continuance of good weather.

By the way. In all our advertising we are advising against the use of chemicals in home-canning. We have had our chemists and home economists check them thoroughly and have good reasons for not recommending them. We mention this in case you are considering stocking up on any of these new products.

Cost of Making Wheat
Alcohol is Cut in Half

New processes are constantly being developed which will reduce the cost of converting farm crops into industrial materials. An Associated Press Dispatch reports development of a new distilling process which went into operation late in June and which it is claimed will cut in two the costs of converting wheat into alcohol to be used for war purposes. It is claimed this development will make wheat alcohol as cheap to produce as molasses alcohol. This process will save the United States $50,000,000 annually in war alcohol costs and at the same time will provide one billion pounds of protein feeds for livestock and for enriching human foodstuffs. In advocating establishment of a Western Division of the National Research Council, with fully equipped laboratories, the Line Elevator Companies contend that the resultant research will bring about erection of grain alcohol distilleries in Western Canada, new industrial uses and enlarged markets for farm crops, and greater prosperity for the Western farmer.

CLUNY

—By A. C.—

A picnic was held at the river on Wednesday to celebrate close of school. The day was very showery and rather spoiled the fun, but the children all met at the school for ice cream and in spite of the rain voted the day a grand success. Our town will seem very quiet for a while with the dormitory closed, but we will be glad to welcome both pupils and teachers back in the fall.

Mrs Lee Raymond left on Wednesday to visit friends at Drumheller.
Miss Betty Williams left on Thursday to attend summer school.

Mrs Edwards house was the scene of a very successful shower on Friday in honor of Miss Anne Reilly whose marriage to Mr P. Reis is to take place on Monday July 6th. Over 50 guests gathered during the afternoon and the gifts were presented in a gaily decorated basket. A contest featuring names of Alberta towns was won by Mrs Walter James and one of scrambled words by "The story of the Bride" with the guests providing the adjectives, proved very amusing. Miss Reilly in a few well chosen words thanked her many friends for the beautiful gifts.

Sgt. R. Clark left on Sunday morning with a squad of Cluny boys to join with the 22nd Battery at Gleichen, then on to Sarcee Camp for two weeks training.

Mrs Walter James has had as her guest for the past few days Mrs Roy Morash of Halifax, N. S. Mrs Morash left on Saturday to visit her mother Mrs A. E. Jones and her sister Mrs
G. Johnston of Vernon, B. C.

WEDDING—

ized on Monday, July 5th at the Holy Trinity Church, Cluny, when Anne
Mary, eldest daughter of Mr and Mrs
E. Reilly was married to Mr Pete

ed assisted by Father Igo.

Given in marriage by her father,
the bride wore a gown of Ivory net

was matron of honor and wore a floor length gown of Turquoise Taffeta.
Miss Mary Reilinger of Brooks was bridesmaid. She wore rose colored net over taffeta. Both attendants carried colonial bouquets and wore head dresses of flowers and ribbon streamers.

Mr S. Reis, brother of the groom was best man and the ushers were John Reilly and Ray Winters.

During the ceremony a selection of hymns were sung by Mrs Denny Cretin assisted by the girls choir.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the home of the bride. Mrs Reilly received with the bridal party, gowned in navy blue with white and wearing navy and white accessories.

Later Mr and Mrs Reis left by motor for Calgary and Banff where a short honeymoon will be spent, the bride travelling in an apple green and mauve ensemble with white acces-ories.

Pests—and a Reminder

Practically every plant, wild or cultivated, is subject to fungus and insect attack. 100% health is as rare in plants as it is in men.

When introducing new crops, we usually have a good idea of the diseases and insects which may cause trouble, but we cannot forecast the severity of attacks. Furthermore, control measures practised elsewhere
may not be practicable or effective in our own region.

This year, we are concentrating a good deal of attention on oil crops:
notably flax, sunflowers, Argentine rape and soybeans. The Dominion Entomological Laboratory at Brandon is anxious to secure all possible information on insects found on the above crops. Growers of these crops are urged to be on the lookout, especially for fly beetles (on rape) and the sunflower moth. Please send specimens and report infestations to Dr. Bird at the Brandon Laboratory.

Send disease specimens to the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology at Edmonton, Saskatoon or Winnipeg.

Cut Sawfly Traps

Dr. C. W. Farstad has prepared the following paragraph and asked us to give it all possible publicity:

"Quite a number of farmers throughout the west have made a start toward a systematic plan for controlling wheat stem sawfly by planting traps. After having established a trap, and the sawflies have laid their eggs, the next step is to complete the destruction of the grubs in the stem. This can be accomplished by cutting the trap with a mower about July 10th, or simply by cutting it with the binder and cultivating the stubble immediately afterward."

HUSSAR

—By M. C. B.—

On Saturday, July 3rd, Mr and Mrs W. R. Trend, Jr. (Billy and Mae), celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary at the home where they have resided all those years. They made a bower of beauty by lining their garage with fresh cut boughs of trees, and here they entertained fifty relatives and close friends at dinner at 5.30 p.m. Later they had open house for their many other friends, who came from the Hussar and Chancellor community.

The entertainment in the form of a darky mock wedding aroused much mirth. At midnight a bountiful repast was served in the "bower" where four long tables seated the guests. The tables were decorated with beautiful bouquets of roses and carnations and also many from the garden of Mrs Ole Christensen. As it chanced to be the birthday of Mrs Lloyd Clark, she was honored by having a beautiful birthday cake decorated with candles. The wedding cake, a thing of beauty and rare flavour, was cut and passed to all. Then the chairman Mr L. F. Snyder, took over and with a telling speech, presented Mr and Mrs Trend with a sterling sugar and creamer set with the best wishes of the community and a token of their esteem for this couple. Relatives had given them the tea and coffee pots of the same set. There were many apt talks from the different guests, and a song by a relative. The old timers W. G. Nelson and C. T. Armstrong had attended the dance in their honor 25 years ago, and made appropriate comments. The guests were from Keoma, and Irricana, where the bride had lived formerly, and Hussar and Chancellor, with several from Calgary, also.

THE ANONYMOUS PEOPLE OF CHINA

I arrived in Chungking late in the afternoon, at an airport some miles from the city. Long before our automobiles had reached the city, the road on either side was lined with people. Before we reached the middle of the city, the crowds stood packed from curb to store front. Men, women, young boys and girls, bearded old gentlemen, Chinese with fedora hats, others with skullcaps, coolies, porters, students, mothers nursing their children will dressed and poorly dressed—they packed eleven miles of road over which our cars slowly moved on our way to the guesthouse in which we were to stay. On the other side of the Yangtze River, they stood and waited. On all the hills of Chungking, which must be the world's hilliest city, they stood and smiled and cheered and waved little paper American and Chinese flags.

Any man who has run for President of the United States is used to crowds. But not to this one. I could discount it in my mind as much as I wished, but to no avail. The paper flags waved by the people were all of the same size, suggesting that the hospitable and imaginative Mayor of Chungking, Dr K. C. Wu, had had a hand in planning this demonstration. It was perfectly clear that not all these people, many of whom were barefoot or dressed in rags, had any clear idea of who I was or why I was there. The firecrackers which were exploding on every street corner, I told myself, are an old Chinese passion anyway.

But in spite of all my efforts to discount it, this scene moved me profoundly. There was nothing synthetic or fake about the faces I looked at. They were seeing, in me, a representative of America and a tangible hope of friendship and help that might be forthcoming. It was a mass demonstration of good will. And it was an impressive show of the simple strength in people and in emotions, which is China's greatest national resource.

The Chinese I came to know well were, inevitably, leaders in one field or another. Some of them I will describe later in this account, and in high terms. But I know no praise high enough for the anonymous people ple of China. —From "One World," by Wendell L. Willkie. (New York, Simon & Schuster). —Christian Science Monitor.
